PARENT INVOLVEMENT

We know that we are just a part of the influence in the heart of a young man. Parents have been there for years and will be there for years to come. Part of our mission is to help parents prepare for greater influence in the life of their child when he returns home. We require dads (or mentor when dad is out of the picture) to attend the Father-Son Encampment during the last week of camp. That starts Thursday, July 27 at 6 p.m. with dinner and concludes July 29. There will be camping opportunities and a whitewater rafting trip. The Encampment will also have great food, both physically and spiritually. The final session ends on Saturday, July 29 at 11am.

We also have a booklet for parents that outlines the spiritual and character lessons that campers will be challenged with each day. We want each parent to follow along each day their son is at camp. Paired with that will be questions, readings, and assignments that will help parents understand what their sons are being taught. Our hope is that parents will use their booklet as a guide to do a 30-day follow-up program with their sons when he comes home.

I (We) _____ as _____ (camper's) parents I/We agree to attend the Father/Son Encampment and engage with the material provided.

WILDHEART ADVENTURE CAMP:
WHAT IS EXPECTED OF YOU AS A CAMPER?

...and that might just be what you are asking yourself? What IS expected of me while I am at camp? You might be wondering what you are going to do here, what you are going to learn here, etc.

We are EXCITED for you to be here and though we know real growth can be a hard process, we are ready to help you grow spiritually and in character as you go through the challenges of camp. While the activities of camp will challenge you physically, this is not a boot camp or a program that is designed to “break” a person. Like any sport or activity that you want to learn and be good at, there are hours of practice and hard work to learn the sport and to become a great athlete. We want you to be challenged to pour your energy and thinking into learning and growing through all the fun adventure that will come your way at camp.

Our program is decidedly Christian. We want you to be ready for the spiritual challenge. Most days will include three spiritual challenges: morning devotions, afternoon “5 minute challenge,” evening chapel. The Christian virtues of character are the goals we are working toward and our core virtues include: respect, responsibility, self-control, and integrity.

What do we expect of you? We expect that you will do the same things we ask of ourselves as staff. There are two basic attitudes that will make your time at camp just flat-out amazing. First, embrace the challenges of each day by respecting others, taking responsibility, and exhibiting self-control and integrity. Secondly, engage your heart in the spiritual challenges by being passionate about Truth and learning how to apply Truth to your life.

I acknowledge that I have had opportunity to read the “What is Expected” sheet and I understand that my success at camp is based my embracing and engaging with the physical and spiritual activities.
